

ABSTRACT

Embodiments of the invention describe a transmitter to synthesize an output signal by combining a bi-polar base band amplitude signal with a phase-modulated signal. The bi-polar base band amplitude may have either positive or negative values depending on at least one predetermined criterion related to an input signal of the transmitter.